

Berlin Program for Advanced German and European Studies

Fellows 1988 - 1989, 3rd Cohort

| | |
|--|--|
| Belinda Davis history University of Michigan | Power, Working Women and the State in World War I in Berlin |
| Patricia Davis-Giehl political science University of Maryland | West German Foreign Economic Policy: Enhancing National Security |
| Lynn Duggan economics University of Massachusetts | The Effect of Pro-natalist Incentives on the Economic Position of Women in Eastern Europe |
| Matthew Levinger history University of Chicago | Rhetoric and Reforms: The Construction of National Identity in Prussia, 1807-1815 |
| Ulrike Linke (postdoc) anthropology Rutgers University | The Language of Resistance: Rhetorical Tactics and Symbolics of Popular Protest |
| Mary McKenzie political science University of California at Santa Barbara | Deutschlandpolitik and the Nuclear Dimension: The CDU/CSU/FDP Coalition, 1982-1988 |
| David Patton political science Cornell University | Between Structures and Processes: A Social Coalition Approach toward Political Change in the FRG |
| Thomas Saylor history University of Rochester | A Comparative Study of Berlin and Munich Workers by Occupational Community during the Kaiserreich |
| John Shearer (postdoc) history University of Pennsylvania | The Politics of Industrial Efficiency: A Comparative Study of the Origins and Social Consequences of Industrial Rationalization in Berlin and the "Ruhrgebiet," 1918-1933 |
| Mark Walker (postdoc) History Union College | A Quantitative and Qualitative Examination of the Interaction between the Exact Sciences and National Socialism |