Project title:	Biologically active metal complexes

PhD Project description:

The PhD project will comprise the synthesis of metal complexes (Cu, Zn) that can exhibit biological activity. Organic synthesis of ligand systems and coordination chemistry as well as characterization of the products will be the main part of the project. Also conjugation to biomolecules is conceivable. The complexes and their bioconjugates, respectively, will be designed such that they can be used for targeting biomolecules in cells. One major application will be the testing of DNA cleavage ability.
